

SDI Media is a language company with 30 offices worldwide, with 700 full-time employees and 7,000 freelance language experts. Originally starting as a localization company SDI Media focused on subtitling and dubbing company for entertainment clients. As language markets and service demands expanded, SDI Media grew with the industry to expand services utilizing our already existing global infrastructure.

More recent language services include voice prompt recordings (for commercial use and text to speech development) , data collection-recruitment and transcription, voice synthesized quality analysis, website localization, tutorial localization (including screen captures), UGC moderation and myriad other language services. Due to our vast network of owned and operated studios combined with our vetted partner studios, SDI Media has created a large global footprint that allows scalability and flexibility for new and expanding language services.

By attending the Iberian SLTech 2009 conference in Lisbon, SDI Media looks forward to meeting other people and groups who share our passion for language.
